In the same vein as his Spartacus and Gayaneh ballet music, perhaps his best known compositions, Khachaturian's music for the satiricalromantic play Masquerade contains some memorable music. There is both charm and energy in the music and it deserves wider recognition, even if not having quite the impact of the other two compositions.

Score

The Graduate Project in Orchestral Conducting for Tigran Arakelyan consisted of rehearsals and a performance of Aram Khachaturian's Masquerade Suite with California State University, Northridge Symphony Orchestra. The performance took place at Plaza del Sol Performance Hall on the campus of California State University Northridge on October 5, 2012. Masquerade Suite was chosen after consultation with Dr. John Roscigno, Director of Orchestral Studies at CSUN. The paper will discuss the rehearsal process, relation of the piece to the play, and score study. Prior to studying the score the conductor first listened to a number of recordings with different interpretations. Although most recordings had a similar approach, it was interesting to notice slight differences in tempo and articulation. In preparation the conductor went through the score, analyzing and predicting possible problem areas for the orchestra as well as specific instruments. It is also important to go through the score and practice the physical gestures in sections that might be problematic for the conductor such as ritardando, accelerando, and multiple meter areas. Unlike an instrumentalist, the conductor has to be completely ready for the performance prior to the first rehearsal.
